Contents

Preface ix
Abbreviations xiii
A Note on Translation xv

Introduction: Bultmann, Missionary to Modernity xvii

Part I: The Myth of the Whale and the Elephant

1. The Problem: The Mythical Picture of Bultmann 3
   1.1. The Myth 4
   1.1.1. “One Way or the Other!” 4
   1.1.2. “They Lack a Common Key” 9
   1.1.3. The Task 12
   1.2. Earlier Attempts at Demythologizing the Myth of the Whale and the Elephant 14
      1.2.1. Eberhard Jüngel 14
         1.2.1.1. Responsible Talk of God 16
         1.2.1.2. Analogy and Paradoxical Identity? 22
      1.2.2. Christophe Chalamet 35
         1.2.2.1. The Herrmannian Origin of Dialectical Theology? 35
         1.2.2.2. Two Kinds of Criticism 46
         1.2.2.3. Bultmann’s Law-Determining Gospel 52
         1.2.2.4. Two Complementary Perspectives 69
   2. Reinterpreting the Myth: A Periodization of the Barth–Bultmann Relationship 75
      2.1. Getting Outside the Mythical Picture 76
      2.2. Protodialectical Liberalism: 1903–1919 79
      2.3. Early Dialectical Theology: 1919–1924 93
      2.4. Turning Points: 1925–1929 111
         2.4.1. Excursus: Barth’s Theological Development 123
      2.5. Dissolution of the Dialectical School: 1930–1933 130
      2.6. New Directions: 1934–1939 156
         2.6.1. Excursus: Bultmann and the Third Reich 176
      2.7. Radicalization: 1940–1950 180
      2.10. Theses Toward a “Common Key” 228

Part II: The Mission of Dialectical Theology

3. The Missionary Essence of Dialectical Theology 237
   3.1. The Missionary Origins of Dialectical Theology 237
      3.1.1. The Dialectical Revolution 237
      3.1.2. The Other Aufruf and the Missionary Origins of the Dialectical Revolution 240
3.1.2.1. The Aufruf of the Twenty-Nine 243
3.1.2.2. The Question of Mission and the Origins of Barth’s Theology 247
3.2. The Dialectical Thesis 259
3.2.1. Dialectical Theology in Historical Context 261
3.2.1.1. The Luther-Renaissance and the Doctrine of Justification 262
3.2.1.2. The Rediscovery of New Testament Eschatology 272
3.2.1.3. The Rise of the Colonial-Missionary and Ecumenical Movements 282
3.2.2. Dialectical Theology: A Modern Apocalyptic Reformation 288
3.3. The Missionary Practice of Dialectical Theology 292

4. The Mission of Bultmann’s Dialectical Theology 305
4.1. Bultmann as Theologian of Mission 306
4.2. The Eschatological Mission of God: Theology without Objectification 309
4.2.1. Bultmann and the Discovery of the Eschatological Kerygma 310
4.2.2. “Gott ist nicht eine Gegebenheit”: The Eschatological Transcendence of God 316
4.2.2.1. Modern Theology and the Problem of God 317
4.2.2.2. The God of the Future: The Eschatological Message of Jesus 322
4.2.2.3. “Ganz Andere”: Eschatological Transcendence 327
4.2.2.4. God’s Being Is in Coming: Toward an Eschatological Theontology 339
4.2.3. The Quest for the Kerygmatic Christ: The Eschatological Event of Salvation 345
4.2.3.1. The Eschatological Dass: Against the So-Called Historical Jesus 346
4.2.3.2. The Eschatological Tat: Justification as the Turning Point of the Ages 354
4.2.3.3. The Eschatological Heilsereignis: Christ as Event 364
4.2.4. Theology without Objectification: The Mission of an Eschatological God 369
4.3. The Eschatological Mission of Theology: Theology without Universalization 374
4.3.1. The Ontic and the Ontological: The Eschatological Theme of Theology 375
4.3.2. The fides quae and the fides qua: The Eschatological Object of Theology 382
4.3.3. “Reden von” and “Reden über”: The Eschatological Task of Theology 388
4.3.4. Theology without Universalization: The Mission of an Eschatological Science 404
4.4. Bultmann’s Correlationist Dialectical Theology 407
4.4.1. Beyond Realism and Idealism 407
4.4.2. Correlationism 412
4.4.3. Dialectical Theological Correlationism 417
4.4.4. Bultmann’s Correlationist Dialectical Theology 425
4.5. “The Church Is Always a Missionary Church”: The Missionary Significance of Bultmann’s Dialectical Theology 431

Part III: The Mission of Demythologizing

5. The Truth of Myth and the Necessity of Demythologizing 439
5.1. The Truth of Myth and the Necessity of Demythologizing 439
5.1.1. The Truth of Myth 441
5.1.2. The Necessity of Demythologizing
5.1.3. The Christological Unity of Myth and Demythologizing
5.2. Two Excursuses on the Necessity of Demythologizing
5.2.1. The Problem of α γνώσις τῶν πάντων: An Excursus on Myth and Science
5.2.2. Theology as the Theory of Praxis: An Excursus on Jüngel’s Glauben und Verstehen
5.3. Kerygmatic Demythologizing: “Das Wort ward Fleisch”
5.3.1. The Word Made Flesh: The Paradoxical Identity of Myth and Demythologizing
5.3.2. Sola fide: The Hermeneutic of the Doctrine of Justification by Faith Alone
5.4. Toward a New Interpretation of Demythologizing

6. Toward a Dialectical Intercultural Hermeneutic
6.1. In Search of a New Conceptuality
6.2. Intercultural Theology: Mission as Hermeneutics
6.3. The Intercultural Critique of Bultmann
   6.3.1. Selbstverständnis as Selbstgespräch
   6.3.2. An Existentially Aculural Kerygma
6.4. Intercultural Hermeneutics: Deconstruction and Reconstruction
   6.4.1. Missionary Deconstruction: Constantinianism and Volkstheologie
   6.4.1.1. The Concept of Culture
   6.4.1.2. The Problem of Constantinianism
   6.4.1.3. The Intercultural Critique of Volksreligion
   6.4.2. Missionary Reconstruction: Understanding and Interpretation
   6.4.2.1. Dialectical Strangeness: Toward a Model of Intercultural Encounter
   6.4.2.2. Understanding as Praxis: Toward a Hermeneutic of Konvivenz
   6.4.2.3. Dialectical Translation: Appropriation and Transpropriation
6.5. Translationism: Interpretation without Guarantees

7. The Problem of Myth and the Program of Deconstantinizing
7.1. Introduction to a New Interpretation of Demythologizing
7.2. Demythologizing in the Context of Modern Mythology
   7.2.1. Excursus: Demythologizing as a Repoliticizing of God-Talk
7.3. The Clarification and Absolutization of Myth
   7.3.1. The Concept of Myth: Bultmann’s Clarification and His Critics
   7.3.2. The Absolutizing of Myth: Mythology as Anknüpfungspunkt in Thielicke
7.4. The Program of Deconstantinizing: Theology without Weltanschauungen
   7.4.1. The Problem of Objectification
   7.4.1.1. Objectification and Mythology
   7.4.1.2. Mythology and Analogy
   7.4.1.3. Mythology as a Primitive analogia entis
   7.4.1.4. Demythologizing as a Critical analogia fidei
   7.4.2. The Problem of the Mythical Weltbild
   7.4.2.1. Weltbild and “Sitz im Leben”
   7.4.2.2. Weltbild and Mythology
   7.4.2.3. Weltbild as Objectification?
7.4.2. Weltbild as Culture

- 7.4.2.4. Weltbild as Culture

7.4.2.5. Weltbild, Wissenschaft, and Wirkungszusammenhang

7.4.2.6. Excursus: Weltbild and Attunement

7.4.3. The Problem of Constantinianism

- 7.4.3.1. Weltbild and Objektivierung

- 7.4.3.2. Primitive and Modern Constantinianism

- 7.4.3.3. The Contemporary Task of Deconstantinizing

8. Eschatological Existence and Existentialist Translation

8.1. Introduction to Existentialist Interpretation

8.2. The Task of Demythologizing

8.3. Existentialist Interpretation and the Hermeneutical Problem: Vorverständnis as Aneignung

- 8.3.1. Objectivity-in-Subjectivity: The Presupposition for Intercultural Encounter

- 8.3.2. Preunderstanding: Understanding as Appropriation

  - 8.3.2.1. The Origin of Preunderstanding

  - 8.3.2.2. Sachkritik and Preunderstanding

  - 8.3.2.2.1. Excursus: Barth and Bultmann on Sachkritik

  - 8.3.2.3. Preunderstanding, Appropriation, and Translation

  - 8.3.2.4. Preunderstanding and the Cultural Life-Context of the Interpreter

- 8.3.3. Preunderstanding and Philosophy: Once Again the Ontological and the Ontic

- 8.3.4. The Dialectical Task of Appropriation

- 8.4. Existentialist Interpretation and the Eschatological Event: Selbstverständnis as Übereignung

  - 8.4.1. Being-in-Becoming: Translation as Intercultural Encounter

  - 8.4.2. Entweltlichung: Self-Understanding as Transpropriation

    - 8.4.2.1. Entweltlichung in the New Testament

    - 8.4.2.2. Entweltlichung as Eschatological Existence

    - 8.4.2.3. Entweltlichung as an Eschatological Hermeneutic

- 8.4.3. The Dialectical Task of Transpropriation

- 8.5. Demythologizing Existentialist Interpretation: Responding to Objections

  - 8.5.1. Jürgen Moltmann

  - 8.5.2. Oswald Bayer

  - 8.5.3. Robert Jenson

- 8.6. Demythologizing as Missionary Existence

Conclusion: The Future of Demythologizing

Appendix A: Appeal of German Churchmen and Professors to Protestant Christians in Foreign Lands (1914)

Appendix B: The Christian Meaning of Faith, Love, Hope (1925)

Appendix C: Leitsätze of Rudolf Bultmann (1925)

Appendix D: On the Concept of “Myth” (1942–1952)

Bibliography

Index