Contents

Contributors vii
Introduction 1
Marcia Y. Riggs and James Samuel Logan

Part One: Moral Dilemmas
1. Maps of Meaning: Black Bodies and African Spirituality as African Diaspora Trope 11
   Anthony B. Pinn
2. Homecoming in the Hinterlands: Ethical Ministries of Mission in Nigeria 23
   Katie Geneva Cannon
3. Women in Rastafari 37
   Noel Leo Erskine
4. Religious Pluralism in Africa: Insights from Ifa Divination Poetry 51
   Jacob K. Olupona
For Reflection and Study 59

Part Two: Moral Community
5. The American Constitution: Its Troubling Religious and Ethical Paradox for Blacks 63
   Riggins R. Earl Jr.
6. The Challenge of Race: A Theological Reflection 77
   James H. Cone
7. Race, Religion, and the Race for the White House 99
   Dwight N. Hopkins
For Reflection and Study 121
Part Three: Moral Discourse

8. “Who Is Their God?” A Critique of the Church Based on the Kingian Prophetic Model 125
   Lewis V. Baldwin

9. Onward, Christian Soldiers! Race, Religion, and Nationalism in Post–Civil Rights America 139
   Jonathan L. Walton

10. Overcoming Christianization: Reconciling Spiritual and Intellectual Resources in African American Christianity 159
    Rosetta E. Ross

11. A Moral Epistemology of Gender Violence 171
    Traci C. West

For Reflection and Study 185

Part Four: Moral Vision

12. An Ecowomanist Vision 189
    Melanie L. Harris

13. An American Public Theology in the Absence of Giants: Creative Conflict and Democratic Longings 195
    Victor Anderson

    Emilie M. Townes

15. Still on the Journey: Moral Witness, Imagination, and Improvisation in Public Life 229
    Barbara A. Holmes

For Reflection and Study 239

Afterword 241
    Marcia Y. Riggs and James Samuel Logan

Notes 243
Indexes 263
Contributors

Katie Geneva Cannon is the Annie Scales Rogers Professor of Christian Ethics at Union Presbyterian Seminary in Richmond, Va. In 1983 Cannon became the first African American woman to receive a PhD from Union Theological Seminary in New York City and was also the first African American woman to be ordained in the United Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). She is the author or editor of numerous articles and seven books, including Katie’s Canon: Womanism and the Soul of the Black Community and Black Womanist Ethics (1998).

James H. Cone is the Charles A. Briggs Distinguished Professor of Systematic Theology at Union Theological Seminary. Dr. Cone is best known for his groundbreaking works, Black Theology and Black Power (1969) and A Black Theology of Liberation (1970), as well as the highly acclaimed God of the Oppressed (1975), Martin and Malcolm and America: A Dream or a Nightmare? (1991), and, most recently, Risks of Faith (1999). An ordained minister in the African Methodist Episcopal Church, Dr. Cone’s current research focuses on the cross and the lynching tree, exploring the relationship between the two theologically.
Lewis V. Baldwin is professor of religious studies at Vanderbilt University. Among his many publications are There Is a Balm in Gilead: The Cultural Roots of Martin Luther King Jr. (Fortress Press, 1991); To Make the Wounded Whole: The Cultural Legacy of Martin Luther King Jr. (Fortress Press, 1992); and Toward the Beloved Community: Martin Luther King Jr. and South Africa (1995). An ordained Baptist preacher, his most recent book is Never to Leave Us Alone: The Prayer Life of Martin Luther King Jr. (Fortress Press, 2010).

Riggins R. Earl Jr. is professor of ethics and theology at the Interdenominational Theological Center in Atlanta. His significant publications include Dark Symbols, Obscure Signs: God, Self and Community in the Slave Mind (2003); Dark Salutations: Ritual, God, and Greetings in the African American Community (2001); and The Jesus as Lord and Savior Problem: Blacks’ Double Consciousness Self-Worth Dilemma (forthcoming). He is currently researching a book-length manuscript titled Blacks, the Bible, and the Constitution.

Noel Leo Erskine is professor of theology and ethics at Emory University’s Candler School of Theology and Graduate Division of Religion, specializing in black theology and pedagogy, the history and development of the black church, and theological method in the work of James Cone, Karl Barth, Dietrich Bonhoeffer, and Martin Luther King Jr. His publications include From Garvey to Marley: Rastafari Theology (2005); King Among the Theologians (1994); Decolonizing Theology: A Caribbean Perspective (1981, 1998); and Black People and the Reformed Church in America (1978).

Melanie L. Harris is associate professor of religion at Texas Christian University in Ft. Worth. An ordained minister in the African Methodist Episcopal Church, she holds degrees from Union Theological Seminary, Iliff School of Theology, and Spelman College. As a former broadcast journalist, Dr. Harris worked as a television news producer and news writer for ABC, CBS, and NBC news affiliates in Atlanta and Denver. She is the author of Gifts of Virtue: Alice Walker and Womanist Ethics (2010).
Barbara A. Holmes is professor of ethics and African American studies at Memphis Theological Seminary, where she was formerly vice president of academic affairs and dean of the seminary. Ordained in the Latter Rain Apostolic Holiness Church in Dallas, she has privilege of call in the United Church of Christ and recognition of ministerial standing in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Her most recent publications include Liberation and the Cosmos: Conversations with the Elders (Fortress Press, 2008) and Joy Unspeakable: Contemplative Practices of the Black Church (Fortress Press, 2004).

Dwight N. Hopkins is professor of theology in the University of Chicago Divinity School and senior editor of the Henry McNeil Turner/Sojourner Truth Series in Black Religion. Among his many works are Being Human: Race, Culture, and Religion (Fortress Press, 2005); Heart and Head: Black Theology—Past, Present, and Future (2002); Introducing Black Theology of Liberation (1999); Down, Up, and Over: Slave Religion and Black Theology (Fortress Press, 1999); and Shoes That Fit Our Feet: Sources for a Constructive Black Theology (1993); as well as numerous edited and coedited volumes.

Jacob K. Olupona is professor of African religious traditions at Harvard Divinity School, with a joint appointment as professor of African and African American studies in the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. His books include Òrisà Devotion as World Religion: The Globalization of Yorùbá Religious Culture (coedited with Terry Rey, 2008), and Kingship,

Rosetta E. Ross is professor of religious studies at Spelman College in Atlanta. Her research and writing explore the role of religion in black women’s activism and focuses particularly on the civil rights movement. She is author of Witnessing and Testifying: Black Women, Religion, and Civil Rights (Fortress Press, 2003), which examines religion as a source that helped engender and sustain activities of seven black women civil rights leaders. Ross’s current research explores compassion and common sense in private and public life.

Emilie M. Townes is the associate dean of academic affairs and Andrew W. Mellon Professor of African American Religion and Theology at Yale University Divinity School with joint appointments in Yale University’s Jonathan L. Walton is assistant professor of African American religions at Harvard University Divinity School, specializing in African American religious studies; religion, politics, media, and culture; and Christian social ethics. Walton’s scholarly work is grounded in the progressive strand of the African American religious tradition and informed by the creative potentiality and rhythmic sensibility of hip-hop culture. His first book is Watch This! The Ethics and Aesthetics of African American Religious Broadcasting (2009).

Traci C. West is professor of ethics and African American studies at Drew University Theological School, Madison, N.J. She is author of Disruptive Christian Ethics: When Racism and Women’s Lives Matter (2006); Wounds of the Spirit: Black Women, Violence, and Resistance Ethics (1999), and editor of Our Family Values: Same-Sex Marriage and Religion (2006). An ordained elder in the New York Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, she has also written several articles on violence against women, racism, clergy ethics, sexuality, and other justice issues in church and society.