

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments
Editor's Note

INTRODUCTION

The Theological Development and Contribution of Paul Tillich

SELECTED TEXTS

1. The Struggle for a New Theonomy

On the Idea of a Theology of Culture
Basic Principles of Religious Socialism

2. Protestant Theology amid Socialist Crisis

Realism and Faith
Nature and Sacrament
The Two Roots of Political Thought
What is Wrong with the "Dialectic" Theology?
The Church and the Third Reich: Ten Theses

3. In the Sacred Void: Being and God

Religion and Secular Culture
The Problem of Theological Method
The Ontological Structure and Its Elements
God as Being and as Living
The Courage to Be

4. Amid Structures of Destruction: Christ as New Being

Existentialism and Christian Theology
From Essence to Existence (The Fall)
Estrangement and Sin
Self-Destruction and Evil
Jesus as the Christ
The New Being in Jesus as the Christ

5. Among the Ambiguities of Life: Spirit and the Churches

The Divine Spirit in the Functions of Life

The Spirit in Self-integration (Morality)

The Spirit in Self-creativity (Culture)

The Spirit in Self-transcendence (Religion)

The Kingdom of God and World History

6. In the End: Revisioning and Hope

The Significance of the History of Religions for the Systematic Theologian

The Right to Hope: A Sermon

SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY

Notes

Subject Index

Index of Names