

Preface

Introduction

Basic Affirmations of the Tradition
The Importance of the Context
The Ordering of the Discussion

The Reality of Human Suffering

Biblical Faith Confesses the Radical Reality of Human Suffering
Ideological Presuppositions of First World Apathy
The Incapacity to Suffer
The Question

Creation: Suffering as Becoming

Introduction: What Should Be?
Struggle Belongs to the Created Order
The Circumscription of Suffering in Creational Theology
The Human Vocation: Stewarding Life
Transition: The Great Risk

The Fall: Suffering as Burden

Introduction: Suffering that Should Not Be!
Sin and Suffering: Connections?
The Irony of Sin
The Tragic Dimension
Understanding and Changing

Redemption: Conquest from Within

Introduction: Redemption as "Point of Departure"
Not by Might
Intimations of an Alternative: The Theology of the Cross
The Conquest from Within Acceptance and Transformation

The Church: Community of Suffering and Hope

Introduction: Faith, Religion, and Suffering
The Courage to Become
Suffering as Participation and Transformation
We Rejoice in Our Sufferings: Suffering and Hope

Appendix: Dialog and Conclusions

Harold S. Kushner, When Bad Things Happen To Good People
C. S. Lewis, The Problem of Pain
Diogenes Allen, Traces of God: In a Frequently Hostile World
George A. Buttrick, God, Pain and Evil
Leslie D. Weatherhead, Salute to a Sufferer

Notes

Indexes