

Acknowledgments
Preface

Playing and Reality

A Game Worth Playing
Playing
Laughing and Playing
Worship and Worship Education

An Adult at Play

Gathering and Preparation
The Lesson
The Response of Wondering Together
The Play and Art Responses
The Feast
Saying Good-bye

Children at Play

The Origin of the Research
The Research Setting
Two Boys and a Parable
Discussion
Conclusion

The Spoken Lesson

Teaching Through the Spoken Lesson
Telling and Listening, Reading and Writing
The Spoken Lesson and Television

The Unspoken Lesson

Teaching with Space
Teaching with Time
Teaching with People

The Imagination and Godly Play

The Origin of the Imagination
The Functional Shape of the Imagination
The Artist and the Imagination
The "Levels" of the Imagination
The Necessity of the Imagination
Discussion
Conclusion

The Theology of Childhood

Another Kind of Knowledge
The Second Great Gate: Language
Teaching the Uniqueness of Religious Language
The Mind of the Maker

Notes

Index