

“This ecumenical guide to the restored catechumenate is brimming with worship suggestions, personal stories, sample outlines for instructional sessions, hundreds of bullet points, even a glossary, for those churches that want, not merely to increase their membership, but to make disciples of Jesus Christ. Congregations considering the catechumenate as well as those already engaged in this way of making disciples will find much assistance in this accessible handbook.”

Gail Ramshaw
Lutheran Theologian
LaSalle University

“... offers a map and a trail guide for taking the Jesus road, beginning with hearing the stories and telling the tales of that journey. This is a guide for leaders and congregations who want to help themselves and others learn to walk in company, how to climb the hills and keep going in the dark, and above all, how to make this the journey of your life, toward the Reign of God.”
Katharine Jefferts Schori

Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church

“You’ll find within these pages rich insights, reasoned wisdom, and a paradigm-shifting view of the possibility of the church’s tomorrow. Sink your teeth in; it will be worth every effort.”

Andrew Root
Presbyterian Theologian
Luther Seminary

“Recovering Christian initiation as a part of a congregation’s mission always brings new life into the congregation. Now those congregations that want to recover this exciting part of mission have a handbook to help them begin!”

Tim Whitaker,
Florida Area Resident Bishop
The United Methodist Church
